Group Feedback Session:
Our group reflected on the project and identified strengths in communication and collaboration, emphasizing our willingness to seek and provide help to one another, effectively resolving conflicts, and fostering trust between the front-end and back-end teams. During our reflection session, we noted that our strengths in collaboration transformed a seemingly impossible task into an achievable one, allowing us to thrive as a team and cultivate a strong learning mindset. However, we noted areas for improvement, including better time management and scheduling, particularly around setting stricter internal deadlines, and enhancing direct collaboration to reduce confusion about individual contributions. In future projects, we aim to take more initiative and address unfamiliar challenges proactively while continuing to support one another. All in all, we are very proud of each other and the product we were able to create.
